

Global Health Supply Chain Internship

MIT-Zaragoza International Logistics Program

- Receive a Masters in Logistics and Supply Chain Management (ZLOG) while at the same time gaining valuable experience working on strategic global health supply chain projects.
- Based in Zaragoza, Spain, ZLOG is part of the MIT-Zaragoza International Logistics Program, a unique research and education partnership between academia, industry and government.
- The ZLOG program is built upon the graduate business program in supply chain management at MIT, which has consistently been ranked #1 by US News and World Report.
- The MIT-Zaragoza Global Health Research Group (GHRG) is a leader in global health supply chain issues and collaborates with institutions such as the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, the World Bank, the WHO, the Roll Back Malaria Partnership, DFID, the Center for Global Development, and Médecins Sans Frontières on strategic supply chain initiatives.

The Global Health Supply Chain Internship provides the opportunity for an exceptionally qualified candidate to pursue a uniquely designed 2 year engagement with the MIT-Zaragoza International Logistics Program.

Coverage

The internship program covers the full cost of tuition as well as administrative and book fees for the ZLOG program (approximately €22,000). In addition, the student will receive a monthly stipend of €1,050.

Eligibility

This is a highly competitive position. The candidate must, at a minimum, fulfill all of the ZLOG admission requirements (found on www.zlc.edu.es) in order to be considered. While a strong background in Global Health and/or International Development is highly desirable, exceptional candidates from all backgrounds are encouraged to apply.

Application Process and Documents

To apply, candidates must complete all of the application requirements from the ZLOG program (found on www.zlc.edu.es). In addition, please send a brief essay (approximately 500 words) describing why you are specifically well-suited to contribute to the GHRG by e-mail or fax to the ZLC Financial Aid Office. The deadline for applying to the internship program is April 15, 2010. Short-listed candidates will be notified by April 30, 2010 and interviews will be arranged.
